Training areas reopened

The U.S. Army Garrison Fort Richardson has reopened the training areas north of Artillery Road to recreation activities. These areas were previously closed because of an incident involving wolves.

Anyone wanting to recreate on Fort Richardson training lands must have a Recreational Access Pass and be registered in the U.S. Army Recreation Tracking System, better known as USARTRAK.

To obtain a RAP or to find out more information about USARTRAK visit the Fort Richardson Visitor's Center at the main gate or log on to www.usarak.army.mil/conservation/rec_usartrak.htm.

No Alaska Post delivery

All Fort Richardson housing residents should receive a copy of the Alaska Post every Friday. If you do not receive a paper by 4 p.m. Friday, please call 384-2546 or e-mail alaskapost@richardson.army.mil. Please provide contact information and address.
